

SCHOOL OF PUBLIC HEALTH

UNIVERSITY AT ALBANY State University of New York

GIS & PUBLIC HEALTH DAY

April 29, 2008

Scheduled Presentations:

Google Maps & Google Earth: Reshaping GIS in Public Health

Wansoo Im, MURP, PhD, Vertices LLC

Tracking MRSA with GIS

Abel Kho MD, MS, Assistant Professor, Northwestern University

Evaluation of Spatial Surveillance Methods: Example Based on Anthrax Bioterrorism

Ken Kleinman, ScD

Associate Professor, Harvard Medical School and Harvard Pilgrim Health Care

GIS Analysis Utilized for Decision Making During a County-Wide Mass Vaccination Exercise

Bob Brems, MPH

Epidemiologist, Zanesville/Muskingum (Ohio) County Health Department

Use of Google Earth to Strengthen Public Health Capacity and Facilitate Management of Vector-Borne Diseases in Resource-Poor Environments

Lars Eisen, PhD, Assistant Professor, Colorado State University

Using GIS to Forecast Infectious Disease Risk

Gregory Glass, PhD

Professor, Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health

This event is co-sponsored by
The University at Albany School of Public Health Center for Public Health Preparedness and Prevention Research Center and the New York State Department of Health

For Early Registration:

<http://www.informz.net/ualbany-sph/event.asp?eid=2871>

Official announcement with details to appear soon on the UAlbany CPHP website:

www.ualbanycphp.org

Please make plans to join us!